

In a swell match of actor and character, Kevin Spacey bites into the role of real-life ex-lobbyist and convicted felon Jack Abramoff in Casino Jack. This hyperactive dramatization (by the late director George Hickenlooper) of how Abramoff and his cronies played crooked money and power games for so long in Washington, D.C., is tonally scattershot and more than a little heavy-footed. But then, so were the real cons from which Abramoff profited while the flimflam worked. C+

See all of this week's reviews

Online Business Consulting | Internet Business Consulting

Source: http://news.google.com/news/url?sa=t&fd=R&usg=AFQjCNFr-8kbqt0VHhAfTHoo_iUiGU1ilQ&url=http://www.ew.com/ew/article/0,,20453727,00.html