

Could Gordon Ramsay be Atlantic City's next celebrity chef?

Last month, the internationally-renowned chef - arguably the most popular chef in the world right now - was in Atlantic City, accompanied by Caesars Entertainment Eastern Division President Don Marrandino and Jay Snowden, senior vice president and general manager of Harrah's Resort and Caesars Atlantic City.

While the two execs are being tight-lipped about their intimate time with Ramsay, it's hard to believe the British chef, television personality and restaurateur would be in town unless business was on the menu.

Another possibility is Marrandino and Snowden are trying to lure Ramsay to headline Caesars Entertainment's Atlantic City Food and Wine Festival this summer. But that's a long shot because Ramsay's schedule rarely allows for public appearances outside of his own restaurants.

Ramsay, who currently has three Fox series - "Hell's Kitchen," "Kitchen Nightmares" and "MasterChef" - has been awarded 12 Michelin stars in his storied career, and he is one of only three chefs in the United Kingdom to hold three Michelin stars at one time.

The Scotland native owns restaurants around the world, with several in the United Kingdom, as well as Dubai, Tokyo, Los Angeles and New York City, the latter receiving top newcomer honors by Zagat.

Known for his volatile personality and foul language on TV, Ramsay is known for being quite a nice guy off-screen.

To sum it up, having a Ramsay restaurant here would be huge for Atlantic City. Keep your fingers crossed.

Borgata players

receive special treat

Borgata VIPs were treated to a special, private show with Darlene Love recently. But those in attendance weren't aware how special it would be. A few days later, Love was selected for induction into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame.

Word is New Jersey legend Bruce Springsteen and E Street band member Little Stevie Nicks were really pushing for her induction. Love performed with Springsteen at the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame Concert at Madison Square Garden in New York, and Nicks wrote "All Alone on Christmas," which became a minor hit for Love on the "Home Alone 2" soundtrack.

At Borgata, Love sang three songs, including her signature, "Christmas (Baby Please Come Home)," a song she sang on "The Late Show with David Letterman" later in the week for the 25th year in a row.
