

Four public hearings will be held in November on the remaining "resort casino" license to be awarded in Pennsylvania, the state's Gaming Control Board announced today.

The Nov. 16-17 hearings, to be held in

Harrisburg, will help determine who will get a license for a resort hotel casino, which must have no fewer than 275 rooms, be more than 15 miles from another slot machine casino, and already offer year-round recreational activities.

The applicants are:

Mason-Dixon Resorts L.P., to be at the Eisenhower Hotel, Conference Center and Resort in Cumberland Township, Adams County;

Woodlands Fayette L.L.C., to be at the Nemaquin Woodlands Resort, Wharton Township, Fayette County;

Penn Harris Gaming L.P., to be at the Holiday Inn Harrisburg West, Hampden Township, Cumberland County; and Bushkill Group Inc., to be at the Fernwood Hotel and Resort, Middle Smithfield Township, Monroe County.

The Valley Forge Resort Casino was awarded a similar, Category 3, license in April 2009, but that action has been appealed by Greenwood Gaming, operator of the Parx Casino in Bensalem. □□□ - Roslyn Rudolph
