(NECN) - City leaders in Fall River, Massachusetts have reportedly decided not to roll the dice on a casino there.

The Cape Cod Times reports city officials told the Mashpee Wampanoags their $21 million offer for land in fall river is off the table.

Instead, they'll consider bringing in a biotechnology park.

The Wampanoags have been pushing for a casino for nearly four years.

Last year, the tribe scrapped a deal it had with Middleboro because it was facing so much opposition.
