

Two apply to run casino boats in North Charleston - Myrtle Beach Sun News

Written by Administrator

Tuesday, 02 November 2010 06:48 -

Charleston takes a leaf out of Myrtle Beach's book I t's taken a millennium or two, but it looks like stuffy old Charleston, the self-described Holy City of South Carolina, is finally looking to the Grand Strand for help in rounding up tourists. OK, we're not actually talking Charleston - it's as stuffy as ever - but North Charleston, which is looking for a pot of gold at the stern of a casino boat.

This week, North Charleston officials took a cruise on a casino boat out of Savannah, Ga. Most people see the excursion as the first step in getting its own casino boat by the end of the year - an idea supported by the mayor and some members of the City Council.

Powered by WizardRSS | Full Text RSS Feeds

Source: <http://news.google.com/news/url?sa=t&fd=R&usg=AFQjCNEFocymKFXGzIBQzffNhlAP3AtlGw&url=http://www.thesunnews.com/2010/11/02/1788127/two-apply-to-run-casino-boats.html>