Rising Star Casino Resort in Rising Sun alerted state officials on Friday, March 28, that it is laying off 407 workers as part of its closure under state actions to limit the spread of COVID-19, according to several sources.

The Indiana Gaming Commission ordered Rising Star and other Indiana casinos on Monday, March 16, to close.

Rising Star said it also closed its dining, golf, and other amenities at that time.

As a result, the company said it will terminate its casino, restaurant and hotel employees on Tuesday, March 31.

It will keep 36 Kessentlal team employees, "who will continue working on operations until such time we may reopen," the company said in a required layoff notice to the Indiana Department of Workforce Development.

The company said if the Rising Star reopens in the near future, it anticipates positions will be available for which current employees may apply.

Meanwhile, Rising Attorney Lane Siekman posted, in part, the following:

Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act Notice:

Gaming Entertainment (Indiana), LLC. Reduction in Force at the Rising Star Casino and Resort, 777 Rising Star Drive, Rising Sun, IN 47040.
