PHOENIX — As we await word on whether or not Arizona Gov. Doug Ducey plans to extend, modify or let expire his stay-at-home order (currently set to end on April 30), nearly all of the casinos in the Phoenix area have extended their closures for at least the next two weeks. Two have announced their plans to remain closed for the entire month of May.

Here is what we know about each.

Talking Stick Resort and Casino Arizona

Late last week, the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community said its casinos -- Talking Stick Resort and Casino and Casino Arizona -- would remain closed through the month of May.

"While we continue to monitor updates from local and state health officials, our focus on the health and safety of our guests and employees has necessitated this decision," the casinos said in a statement.

Fort McDowell Casino

The Fort McDowell Yavapai Nation said Tuesday, April 28, that its casino, Fort McDowell Casino, would remain closed through May 14 with plans to reopen on May 15. The Wo-Ko-Pa Resort, which is attached to the casino, would reopen at a later time, according to the Tribe.

Vee Quiva, Lone Butte, and Wild Horse Pass

Gila River Hotels and Casinos said Tuesday, April 28, that its three casinos would remain closed through May 15.

Harrah's Ak-Chin Hotel & Casino

Ak-Chin Hotel and Casino in Maricopa, Arizona, part of Caesars Entertainment Corporation, but managed by the Ak-Chin Indian Community, remains closed until further notice. Earlier this week, the Tribe announced that it has extended employee benefits for the next two weeks through May 14.

Desert Diamond West Valley Casinos

In a tweet last week, the Tohono O'odham Nation's Desert Diamond West Valley Casino said it has extended its closure through May 15.

"As it is our goal to continue to ensure the safety of our community, we have decided to extend our suspension of operations through 5/15," the casino said in a tweet.
