

Workers at Rivers Casino Philadelphia complain of coronavirus secrecy and lax safety

Written by Administrator

Wednesday, 16 September 2020 10:19 -

Representatives from Rivers, operated by Rush Street Gaming, declined to be interviewed for this story. They instead issued a statement disputing the employees' complaints, saying the number of call-outs has been decreasing. The company, which operates similarly named casinos in Upstate New York, Iowa, and Pittsburgh, said it has hired additional cleaners to disinfect the facility and installed new air filters to help combat the virus.

Read more <https://www.inquirer.com/health/coronavirus/rivers-casino-reopening-coronavirus-cases-philadelphia-20200916.html>