It has been a very frustrating season for several household names in the NASCAR Cup Series as the circuit heads to New Hampshire Motor Speedway on Sunday for the 2021 Foxwoods Resort Casino 301. Denny Hamlin, listed at 6-1 in the 2021 Foxwoods Resort Casino 301 odds from William Hill Sportsbook, and Kevin Harvick (12-1) are still winless with five races remaining in the regular season. Hamlin is looking to keep a 10-point lead in the standings over 2021 NASCAR at New Hampshire favorite Kyle Larson (9-2), while Harvick is looking to end a 28-race winless streak.

Hamlin, who is on a 26-start winless streak, is a three-time winner at New Hampshire and has finished second in the last two races at the site. He has the highest all-time driver rating of any active driver there. Harvick leads all active drivers in New Hampshire wins with four and finished fifth in this event last season. Developed by daily Fantasy pro and SportsLine predictive data engineer Mike McClure, this proprietary NASCAR prediction model simulates every race 10,000 times, taking into account factors such as track history and recent results.

The model began the 2020 season paying out big by picking Denny Hamlin to win his second consecutive Daytona 500 at 10-1. The model also called Kevin Harvick's win at Atlanta and nailed a whopping nine top-10 finishers in that race. McClure then used the model to lock in a 10-1 bet on Hamlin for his win at Miami.

At The Brickyard, the model called Harvick's fourth victory of the season. Then during the 2020 NASCAR Playoffs, the model nailed its NASCAR picks in back-to-back races, calling Denny Hamlin to win at 17-2 at Talladega and Chase Elliott to win at 7-2 at the Charlotte Roval.

In the 2021 season, McClure nailed Martin Truex Jr. to win at Martinsville for a strong 3-1 payout. The model also nailed Kyle Larson winning the NASCAR All-Star Race at 5-2 and hit Larson again at the Ally 400 for another 5-2 payout. Then at Road America it struck again, nailing Chase Elliott to win for another 5-2 return. Anyone who has followed its lead on those plays has seen huge returns.

Top 2021 Foxwoods Casino Resort 301 predictions

One surprise: the model is high on William Byron, even though he's a 14-1 long shot in the latest NASCAR at New Hampshire odds 2021. He's a target for anyone looking for a huge payday. Byron is closing in on a playoff berth, as he needs just 15 points to clinch a spot and could get into the postseason with a win this week. Byron had two top-three finishes recently at Nashville and Pocono and has led for a total of 37 laps in two of the past three races, so he may be on the verge of a strong run.

Byron is fourth among active drivers at New Hampshire with an average finish position of 12.3. He is second in green flag passes at New Hampshire dating back to 2018 with 240. Byron is 16th in the 2021 Foxwoods Resort Casino 301 starting grid, but loop data indicates that he can make a push towards the front of the pack. He is also sixth in quality passes (passes of cars in the top 15 while under green flag conditions) dating back to 2018 with 121.

And a massive shocker: Brad Keselowski, one of the Vegas favorites at 13-2, stumbles and barely cracks the top 10. There are far better values in this loaded 2021 Foxwoods Casino Resort 301 starting grid. Keselowski is 10th in the NASCAR standings and would probably be gritting his teeth the last five races of the regular season if not for a win at Talladega that automatically qualifies him for his 11th consecutive playoff appearance.

While he won at New Hampshire Motor Speedway last summer, Keselowski has also finished outside the top 10 in three of his last eight starts there and certainly hasn't been racing up to expectation so far this season. Keselowski has failed to crack the top 10 in seven of his last 10 starts in the NASCAR Cup Series.

How to make 2021 NASCAR at New Hampshire picks

The model is also targeting two other drivers with 2021 NASCAR at New Hampshire odds of 12-1 or longer to make a serious run at winning it all. It also sees value in a massive triple-digit long shot. Anyone who backs these drivers could hit it big. You can see all of the model's NASCAR picks over at SportsLine
